Clear Focus Imaging

clearfocus.com

Get your image out there with Clear Focus' perforated, pressure-sensitive vinyl film for see-through window graphics. The company uses One Way Vision Film, offering cutting-edge window graphics technology, while allowing you to diversify your printing capabilities and expand your customer base for greater profitability, according to the company. Clear Focus has been used to wrap vehicle windows on company cars, personal trucks and even trains. Your company can also use the wraps as banners or signs on your building windows. Up to 50 percent of the film is perforated to achieve the desired image resolution and one-way visibility. The wraps also feature pressure-sensitive adhesive with solid-release liner that also reduces heat and glare from the sun. The film doesn't tear as easily as thinner films because it is six- to eight-millimeters thick, the company says. Check out examples and order online or call (800) 307-7990.
